Dear Graduate Students:

Cornell University and Weill Cornell Graduate School are committed to providing a safe, inclusive, and respectful learning, living, and working environment for the University community. Cornell University's Policy 6.4 addresses issues of bias, discrimination, harassment, and sexual and related misconduct, including gender-based harassment, sexual harassment, sexual assault, domestic and dating violence, stalking, and sexual exploitation. To ensure that all students, staff and faculty understand the policy and its applicable procedures, graduate and professional students must complete an online course called Not Anymore. This is an interactive educational course on sexual/gender-based harassment, sexual assault, dating/domestic violence, and stalking.

This course will increase your awareness of sexual assault and related misconduct, help prevent this misconduct, and provide you with information about resources available to you and your peers. The course is comprised of 6 separate video modules that clearly define and provide examples of sexual assault and related misconduct. All modules are followed by a post-test designed to reinforce key examples and definitions and the entire course takes about 40 minutes.

Students will receive credentials at orientation and will be able to access and complete the program in CANVAS at <http://courses.med.cornell.edu>. After logging in with your CWID and password, please click on "Title IX Training – "Not Anymore." Read the course introduction, then click the "Begin the Course" link to enter the course, and allow the Title IX training to load in a new window.

All graduate students are required to complete Not Anymore by August 25, 2019.

The graduate school faculty and staff hope that you will view this course as an educational opportunity – being part of a safe, respectful community enables us all to focus on our missions of patient care, education and research.
